Tribune Prints True Episode by Gertrude Mitsdarffer

LITERARY DEPT.: The Chicago Tribune has daily prize stories submitted by readers who receive cash if they are accepted.

Gertrude Mitsdarffer of this city wrote one of these true episodes which was accepted and published Saturday about a trip west after she got out of college.

Mrs. Mitsdarffer, although happy her story was accepted, was a bit disappointed, too. The Tribune cut down on the size.

"They said to write it in 800 words," she said. "I had 805 or 806 and they cut it down to about 450 words. As a result, a lot of the gist of the original story is gone."

Here is Gertrude's 450 words:

"As a college graduation gift, my father had given me a new auto and money for a visit to my sister on her Colorado ranch. My 80-year-old aunt offered to keep me company, and, jokingly, I accepted her suggestion. However, the joke was on me since she wound up joining me on the long journey.

"On the second day, as we drove across the Kansas plains and listened to our radio, we heard the announcer say:

"Warning to motorists. Be on the lookout for four dangerous convicts who escaped from Leavenworth penitentiary early today. All are armed. Three are in their early 30s. The fourth is 63 years old, has a German accent, and appears mild mannered and kindly."

"A few hours later, in a desolate area where no signs of human existence were visible, a tire blew out and I parked my car on the shoulder of the highway. I had never changed a tire, but I went to the trunk, crammed full of everything, and around in search of a jack. I felt a sharp pain in my right wrist, then something wet and warm. I knew it was blood and that I had rammed my hand against a smashed heirloom pitcher. I used my thermos jug ice water to try to stop the bleeding.

"Soon a truck came along and the driver agreed to take my aunt to the next town and also to report my plight to the local branch of the insurance company with which I held a policy.

"In the meantime, I decided to rearrange our luggage. As I was at this task, I felt someone near me. Looking up, I saw a man of about 63 not 15 feet from me. I whipped around, grabbed my 45 from the car pocket and pointed it at him, warning, 'Don't come any closer.'

"He halted, thrust his hands in the air, and in a German accent said kindly, 'Lady, I don't want to hurt you. I want to help you.'

"As time passed I became less frightened. He began easing a bit closer. Again, I threatened, 'I will shoot if you don't stop.'

"About this time the men from the insurance firm arrived to find me poking my 45 out of the car window and the 'convict,' with hands in air, scarcely five feet away. They jumped out of their two trucks, yelling:

"'Hi, Uncle John! What's up?'"

"'Hello, parson. Playing cowboy, eh?'"

"When they stopped laughing, they introduced me to the old gentleman. He was a highly respected rancher and a preacher.

"Later I received a business letter from the insurance firm, with a newspaper clipping which bore a headline saying, 'Modern Annie Oakley Greets Parson.'"

Graveside Service For Two Babies In Gallatin County

A graveside service was held today at 10 a. m. at the Westwood cemetery in Gallatin county for the two babies, Wanda Sue and Linda Kaye, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Amos Brooks, who burned to death yesterday morning when fire destroyed the home. Rev. W. W. Hunsacker officiated. The Wright funeral home of Shawneetown was in charge.

Congressman is Convicted of Payroll Padding

Found Guilty of Taking Money from Clerk
Who Did No Work

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Ernest K. Bramblett's attorney today vowed a fight—to the Supreme Court if necessary—to overturn the California Republican's conviction on payroll padding charges.

A federal district court found the 52-year-old, "unobtrusive" congressman guilty late Tuesday on seven counts of lying to the House disbursing office about his payroll. The jury heard testimony that Bramblett took money from a woman "clerk" who did no work.

Bramblett, who listened to the verdict with no outward show of emotion, could be sentenced a maximum of 35 years and fined up to $70,000. The sentencing will be delayed for a week or two.

Plans Legal Battle

Defense Attorney Edward B. Williams planned a vigorous legal battle to reverse the conviction. He served notice to Federal Judge Walter Bastian that he will file a formal motion asking that the verdict be set aside. Williams said he will also file a notice of appeal and would take the case to the highest court in the land, if necessary.

The conviction left Bramblett's political future in the balance. A fourth-term congressman from California's 13th District, Bramblett said before the trial he had not made up his mind whether to seek reelection this November. But he cast his vote for another man at a recent meeting of the district's Republicans to endorse a candidate for his seat.

He was the fifth congressman to be convicted of a federal crime since World War II and the third on payroll padding charges.

Bramblett, the father of three sons, was freed on $2,500 bond. Court officials said a probation report on the congressman will be filed automatically.

Woman Testifies

The seven counts all involved Mrs. Margaret Swanson, an attractive, 39-year-old blonde, who testified she was on Bramblett's payroll from September, 1949, through December, 1950.

Mrs. Swanson testified that she did no work, and her husband turned her salary of about $460 to $490 a month over to Bramblett. Her husband, Irving, a former clerk for House Republicans, said he and the congressman worked out the plan.

The money was to go to Bramblett's wife, Lois, Swanson said, who was to continue working for the congressman without appearing on his payroll. Swanson said he was amazed to learn later that Mrs. Bramblett went back on the payroll in January of 1950.

Bramblett did not testify and no other witnesses were called in his defense. He pleaded innocent to the charges.

Missouri Elects Two Democrats To State Senate

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Two Democrats were elected Tuesday to the Missouri State Senate, giving the party a majority in the Senate again for the coming special session of the Legislature.

James M. Webb, in the 4th District and John P. Barrett in the 6th District won by wide margins in the special election here.

A metropolitan sewer district plan was approved by voters in both the city and St. Louis County.

Also on the ballot in the county was a package of six bond issue proposals, but voters turned down three of the proposals including the No. 1 proposition, $32,124,500 for expressways and highways.

Bond issues totaling $5,108,500 for hospital buildings and equipment, voting machines and buying land for sanitary landfills for garbage disposal passed by more than the required two-thirds majority.

The Democrats' victory in the St. Louis senatorial races breaks a 16-16 Democrat-Republican tie in the Senate existing since the deaths of two senators, Anthony M. Webb and Harry J. Byrne. James Webb, Anthony's brother, defeated Republican Philip E. Muehlehauser, 7991 to 1718, and Barrett won over Republican Leo Redel, 10,299 to 4362.

Open Bids Tomorrow Night for Equality Gym

Bids will be opened at 7:30 tomorrow night for construction of a new Equality high school gymnasium, destroyed in a heavy windstorm in June. R. D. Brown, architect, said that seven bids for general construction have been submitted so far.

Never Slept In Bed With Wife, Macfadden Says

NEW YORK (AP)—Physical culturist Bernarr Macfadden, 86, claims he "never slept in bed" with the wife he married six years ago.

He always slept on the floor, he told a judge Tuesday. Macfadden testified in a separation suit brought by his 48-year-old wife, Jonnie Lee.

The white-haired vegetarian said it was his practice in recent years to always sleep on a hard pallet on the floor.

"I hurt my back about 20 years ago. I never did sleep in a bed with her," he said.

In answer to a lawyer's question, Macfadden said his wife "acquiesced" when he proposed that they have a child.

"Were there any developments after that?" the lawyer asked.

"No," Macfadden said, shaking his head. "I am sorry to say there weren't."

Macfadden testified he had to "make an appointment" to visit his wife in her apartment. They lived separately.

U. S. is Little Disturbed Over Soviet A-Guns

WASHINGTON (AP)—U. S. officials showed little concern today over reported Russian development of the atomic cannon.

They would be far more worried by credible intelligence that the Reds had perfected a deliverable H-bomb, or possessed tactical and long-range guided missiles with nuclear warheads.

The significant thing about Tuesday's atomic artillery report from Moscow, as pointed out by Rep. Melvin Price (D-Ill.), is the light it throws on the scope and vigor of Russia's atomic project.

Price, a member of the House-Senate Atomic Energy Committee, said the Soviets "are going into all phases" of nuclear weaponizing. Rep. W. Sterling Cole (R-NY), chairman of the atomic committee, said Americans must not assume they can do something the Russians can't. His statement recalled the Reds' H-bomb test of last August and their development of battlefield as well as strategic A-bombs.

"Our resolution must be all the more determined to keep ahead," Cole said.

Consider Guns Obsolete

Congressional atomic experts are practically unanimous in the conviction that artillery shells provide a poor method of delivering nuclear explosives. For engineering reasons they are extremely inefficient compared with air bombs.

Although the U. S. Army swears by its 11-inch A-guns, many other weapons experts considered them obsolete from the beginning. These sources say the point is not whether Russia can match America's atomic artillery battalions.

The big thing is which nation is ahead with guided missile delivery of hydrogen and atomic explosives. Whatever the atomic cannon's merits as a weapon, its development would mark another stage in Russia's nuclear progress.

The Soviets tested their first A-bomb four years after America's first. But they exploded an experimental H-bomb only nine months after this country tested its first big hydrogen device.

In the case of the atomic cannon, if the Moscow reports are true, the time interval again is only nine months. The United States fired its first atomic shell last May 25.

Molotov Seeks To Exclude U. S. In Europe Plan

Security Proposal
For European Nations
Is Opposed by West

BERLIN (AP)—Soviet Foreign Minister Vyacheslav M. Molotov proposed in the Big Four foreign ministers conference today a "general European treaty on collective security in Europe" which would be open to all European countries regardless of politics.

Molotov, in a second proposal, called for the withdrawal of foreign occupation troops from both Western and Eastern Germany within six months.

The Soviet "security" proposal would exclude the United States from the defense of Western Europe against Communist aggression.

Molotov's proposed treaty would admit "all European states without regard to their social systems"—which would guarantee the domination in the set-up of the very countries against which the free nations of Europe have been forced to combine.

Britain Not Mentioned

Molotov had given a preview of his plan in a two-hour speech Tuesday and the Western foreign ministers had decided at once that it was totally unacceptable.

The Molotov treaty would invite the United States and Communist China "to send representatives as observers" to the European organization he proposed.

Great Britain, which is not a part of continental Europe, was not mentioned. It might be excluded in the interest of greater Red domination.

Molotov made his treaty bid at today's 15th session of the Big Four conference. The Communist delegate presented the United States, British and French foreign ministers with separate documents outlining his proposals.

The Molotov plan for "security" was all but overshadowed by behind-the-scenes activity on two big issues in Asia—Korea and the Indochina war.

Official sources disclosed that the Western delegates intend to make a strong attempt to get Russia to use its influence with Communist China to negotiate a Korean peace treaty and end its aid to the Red rebels in Indochina.

It was indicated that negotiations to this end would be conducted informally and in the greatest secrecy.

Molotov's security plan comprised 11 points.

The security treaty, open to all countries in Europe, would run for 50 years.

Lions Discuss Saline County Blood Program

Saline county's participation in the blood bank program was discussed at the Harrisburg Lions club Tuesday night, with club president Charles Rauh leading the discussion.

It was pointed out that in the past when the Bloodmobile was in Saline county the quota had not been met and unless the number of donors increases the county may be dropped from the program.

Under the program all hospitals in Saline county receive their total supply of blood from the St. Louis center at no cost to the patient, the only charge being for materials and laboratory work.

The Lions club expressed their complete approval of the program and voted to join in the effort to obtain donors on the next visit of the Bloodmobile.

Harry Lee Robinson was welcomed as a new member of the Lions club and John McDugle, new manager of the Harrisburg Woolworth store, was a guest.

Charles Takacs Rites at Galatia Thursday 2 p. m.

The funeral of Charles Takacs, former resident of Galatia who was fatally injured Monday night in Crown Mine near Farmersville, will be held Thursday at 2 p. m. at the Galatia Baptist church. Rev. W. M. Fuson will officiate, and burial will be in Sunset Lawn cemetery.

He is survived by his wife, Emma; two children, Beverly and Jerry; his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Takacs, Harco, and the following brothers and sisters: Frank, Princeton, Ind., Steve, Harrisburg, RFD, Mrs. Elizabeth Stefane, El Dorado, Mrs. Rose Pritchett, Harrisburg, RFD, Mrs. Helen Fougner, Owensboro, Ky., Miss Patricia Takacs at home, Miss Esther Takacs, Evansville, Ind.

The body now lies in state at the Courtney funeral home.

WHERE TRAGEDY STRUCK—Ruins of the Amos Brooks home in Bowlesville township, Gallatin county, is shown here. Fire which consumed the entire dwelling minutes after its discovery claimed the lives of the Brooks' two baby daughters, Wanda Sue, 14 months, and Linda Kaye, about four months. Mr. Brooks, who was working nearby, was able to save his two boys, ages 4 and 5, before the roof caved in. Frame of the cot on which the charred bodies of the two small girls were later found can be seen in the lower center foreground. (Register Staff Photo)

Atlantic Blizzard Sinks Two Ships; 3 Sailors Missing

HALIFAX, N. S. (AP)—A 65-mile-an-hour blizzard sank two ships in the Atlantic today and another was reported missing. Three sailors were feared drowned.

The 160-ton schooner Keith V. Collins broke up and sank 60 miles east of here and bits of wreckage from the 47-foot schooner Liberator were sighted off Cape Breton.

Six crewmen from the Collins were rescued by the freighter Cape Smoky shortly after the freighter received the schooner's distress message.

There was no trace of the three-man crew of the Liberator and all were feared lost.

The third vessel, the Jennah H., was overdue at Glace Bay. Although no trace of the vessel has been sighted, Air Force search-and-rescue officials believe she may have pulled into a cove or bay to ride out the fierce storm.

Phillip Durham to Open Glass, Paint, Wallpaper Store

Remodeling operations have started on the store building at Poplar and Jackson streets which will soon become the location of the Durham Glass, Paint, and Wallpaper company, it was announced today by Phillip Durham, proprietor of the new store.

The Durham firm will be the local retail outlet for the complete line of Valspar paints and varnishes and Pittsburgh paints and enamels, and will maintain a custom glasswork department featuring the complete Pittsburgh glass line, Durham said. He will also be the distributor for Valspar paints and varnishes for a large area of southern Illinois.

Phil and Bernice Durham will operate the store, with Jimmy Davis in charge of the glass department. A grand opening is planned for the weekend beginning Feb. 25, formal announcement of which will appear later, Durham said.

Agriculture Dep't Says Food Prices Will Remain Steady

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Agriculture Department told consumers today not to expect a break in food prices this year and predicted a slight increase in late winter because of "some tightening" in meat supplies.

It said overall retail food prices in 1954 are expected to average "substantially the same as last year."

The department said food supplies generally should be as large this year as in 1953. But it said continued strong demand and the "relative inflexibility" of food marketing costs will rule out any sharp reduction in prices.

Mrs. Arnyess J. Wickens, deputy director of the Labor Department's statistics bureau, told the House-Senate Economic Committee Tuesday no "marked change" is expected this year in "the general level of consumer goods and services."

She said consumers should not hold off buying needed goods in hopes of lower prices.

Eisenhower Allays Congressional Fears About U. S. Aid to Indochina

By United Press

President Eisenhower tried today to allay congressional fears that this country might get drawn into the Indochina war.

The President said at a news conference he could think of no greater tragedy than for America to get into the shooting. He said U. S. aid to Indochina's anti-Communist forces is calculated to avoid that possibility.

Additional aviation technicians sent recently to Indochina will return by mid-June, he said.

Sen. John C. Stennis (D-Miss.) said he is still fearful but added he was pleased by the President's statement that the ground crews would be withdrawn in a few months.

Sen. Lester C. Hunt (D-Wyo.), like Stennis, a member of the Senate Armed Forces Committee, said he is "entirely satisfied" to leave U. S. aid decision to the President.

Coffee: The Senate passed legislation to impose federal regulations on coffee trading. Approval was by voice vote with no dissents and without debate. The measure now goes to the House.

Reserves: Sen. Burnet R. Maybank (D-S. C.) introduced a bill to create an assistant secretary of defense for military reserve affairs. He said reserve problems have become so "acute" that an additional assistant secretary is needed to take care of them.

TVA: Gov. Frank G. Clement of Tennessee said President Eisenhower's budget for the Tennessee Valley Authority will mean a "brownout" for the area. He told a House Appropriations subcommittee that TVA should be permitted to build a steam plant ruled out by the budget.

Unemployment: Michael Micich, Republican mayor of Charles City, Iowa, said the Republicans will lose the farm and labor vote if unemployment continues to rise. Micich told the Congressional Economic Committee that saying "everything is rosy is not a true picture." Unless the administration "shifts gears," he said, Iowa will be lost to the Democrats.

Mechanics: Before President Eisenhower's news conference declaration that he is trying to keep the United States from getting embroiled in Indochina, Democrats had criticized the decision to send U. S. mechanics to the Franco-Vietnamese forces.

Says Decision A Mistake: Sen. Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.), ranking Democrat on the armed services committee, said the decision was a "mistake" that

Two Killed in Crash Near Carbondale

CARBONDALE, Ill. (AP)—An inquest will be held here Friday into the death of Mrs. Nina Stankus, 40, Makanda, who died Tuesday of injuries received in an auto accident Jan. 31.

Robert T. Pleasant, 57, Carbondale bartender and driver of the auto in which Mrs. Stankus was riding, was killed instantly when the car smashed into the rear of a truck on U. S. 51 north of here.

Jackson County Coroner Ed Knowles said testimony presented at the inquest into Pleasant's death will be heard and at least one new witness will be called.

President Says He Cannot Halt GOP Attacks

Democrats Angry at Charges Hurling by Republican Leaders

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower said today he thinks it is untrue, politically unwise and foolish to say that all Democrats are tinged with treason or amount to security risks.

As for Democratic pleas that he halt charges of treason by Republican leaders, Mr. Eisenhower told a news conference there is no way a President could stop this except among his own branch of government.

Thoughtfully and slowly, the President then said he doubts that any great display of partisanship by his executive staff is particularly appropriate at this particular time.

Mr. Eisenhower called no specific names. Nor would he entertain any discussion of specific individuals, particularly Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis.), who have been attacking the last two Democratic administrations.

New Attacks by Republicans: After the President's brief discussion on his distaste for extreme partisanship, a reporter asked whether it was accurate to construe his remarks "as meaning that you could counsel the officials of the executive branch of government not to indulge in extreme partisanship."

This, the President said, was correct. In recent days McCarthy, and President Assistant Sherman Adams, among other Republicans, have heaped new attacks on the Democrats' GOP National Chairman Leonard W. Hall, also has been sharply critical of the opposition party.

Rep. Sam Rayburn (D-Tex.) and Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson Tuesday raised the possibility that bi-partisan support of the GOP program might suffer if the chief executive did not halt what the Democrats regard as "smear" tactics against them.

The news conference discussion was prompted by increasing Democratic anger over charges being hurled at their party by Republican Lincoln Day orators.

Democrats Bitter: McCarthy, for example, has said all Democrats are "stained" by what he called a "great betrayal" on the part of Democratic administrations. Adams last Saturday denounced "political sadists" who, he said, are trying to foist a "fear deal" in the country with talk of a depression.

Sen. A. S. Mike Monroney (D-Okla.) had called on the President to say at today's news conference whether he repudiates the GOP's "rat alley attack" on Democrats.

Democrats have been kicking up a storm over the way Republicans have been linking them with Communism. They also have objected bitterly to a charge presidential assistant Sherman Adams made Saturday that Democrats are "political sadists" trying to promote a "fair deal."

They hinted broadly that if the President doesn't do something quickly to curb the assaults, his program might run into difficulties in Congress where they hold a near majority.

Hit Security Risk Figure: James C. Hagerty, the President's press secretary, insisted Tuesday that the Republicans really aren't "attacking" the Democrats.

"We're just giving the people the facts," he said.

One of the things irritating the Democrats is the administration statement that it has fired 2,200 "security risks," with an implication that the government was riddled with Communists under the Truman Administration.

Sen. Wayne Morse (I-Ore.) fired a broadside at the 2,200 figure Tuesday, charging that the President was using "Fascist" and "big lie" techniques by giving the impression that most of the 2,200 were Reds.

E. German Reds Cancel Furloughs To Crush Unrest

BERLIN (AP)—East Germany's Communist regime today was reported to have cancelled all leaves and called back all men on furlough to crush spreading unrest and mounting demands for Western type free elections.

The Red police underscored with gunfire, which wounded one German on Berlin's city frontier, their orders to deal ruthlessly with anyone suspected of agitating against the Red puppet regime.

The West Berlin "Fighting Group Against Inhumanity" reported that the Communists have brought their militia-like police forces up to its full, 200,000-man strength in fear a new workers revolt, similar to that of last June 17. Official confirmation of the report was not immediately available.

Austria's Postwar Recovery Forces Treaty Consideration

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—While the Big Four foreign ministers in Berlin are arguing for the 260th time about making a peace treaty with Austria, that little country—almost without notice—has made such a comeback that it no longer requires American aid. Some $18 million worth of U. S. supplies still in the pipeline will be delivered to Austria, but no new foreign aid is asked for in the 1955 budget.

When Foreign Operations Administrator Harold E. Stassen recently announced the end of aid to Austria, it barely got a line in the U. S. press, but this Austrian recovery is the best possible argument for giving the country a peace treaty and ending military occupation by U. S., British, French and Russian troops.

Austria has made this postwar recovery in spite of Soviet occupation of one fourth of its territory and a systematic Russian looting of oil and other resources to the tune of over a billion dollars. The Austrians now want the Russians out so badly that they are offering to pay an additional $150 million to settle all claims.

Tremendous amounts of machinery, vehicles, textiles and raw materials have been taken to Russia. At the same time the Russians have operated a system of state-owned stores which have undersold Austrian retailers by refusing to pay customs duties or taxes.

All these things have been done in complete disregard of Austria's own economic needs. This explains, of course, why Russia doesn't want to let go its hold on Austria.

U. S. AID CONTRASTS

RED LOOTING
By contrast, the United States has poured $960 million into Austria since the start of the Marshall Plan in 1948. Direct aid amounted to $727 million.

The country was terribly disorganized by German occupation and then shot up during the war. Homes and factories were destroyed, farms were out of production, food and clothing scarce. The first American step was to move in $168 million worth of relief.

After the people were fed and clothed, and seed and machinery provided for the farms, the job of building up industry was begun. This economic assistance was applied to Austria as a whole, though concentrated in the American zone.

Industries that could be moved from the Russian zone were re-established in the west. The big steel industry at Linz, bombed out in the war, was put back in commission. The aluminum industry was built up around Salzburg. Electric power production at Alpine dams has been stepped up 50 per cent in six years to reduce coal imports. Heavy machinery, electrical goods, pulp and paper and lighter industry are going again.

All this, plus bumper crops in the last two years and a restoration of Austria's old tourist trade above prewar levels, has definitely taken the country from the red side of the ledger.

Gold and dollar reserves have more than doubled to over $200 million, and the Austrian government deliberately understates it. It is a creditor nation in the European Payments Union. Exports have jumped to over $500 million for 1953, from $22 million in 1946.

TRADE BEHIND IRON CURTAIN HAS BEEN CUT

At the same time, Austria's normal trade with countries now behind the Iron Curtain has been cut down. Forty per cent of Austria's imports came from eastern Europe in 1932, but only 16 per cent in 1952. Exports to the east have declined from 32 to 18 per cent in the same 20 years. Austria today faces west.

One of the factors contributing to Austrian recovery is that it has not had to spend any money on armaments. They were prohibited by the occupying powers. But the main element of Austrian success has been the astuteness of its political leaders.

In the elections a year ago, the Communists polled only five per cent of the vote—a drop from six per cent in previous votes. This gives them only four seats in the 165-member Parliament. It isn't even enough to allow them to introduce any measures.

In 1947 the United States took the saddle of occupation army costs off the Austrians' backs. This year the Russians have likewise been forced to release Austria from these costs. For the last six months the Soviet has been practicing a softer policy.

Commerce has been opened up on the Danube, permitting trade with Hungary and Yugoslavia. There is some trade with Czechoslovakia and coal is imported from Poland. But the border is still closed to the free movement of people. What's needed now is a final push that will make the Communists give Austria a peace treaty.

Mr. and Mrs. Taylor Owen celebrated their Golden Wedding anniversary Sunday, January 24, with "open house" from 2 to 4 p. m. at their home south of Mitchellville. Coffee and sandwiches were served throughout the afternoon.

Those attending were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gidcomb and daughters, Shirley, Janice and Judith, Miss Margaret Hunt, Miss Judith Ann Martin, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lee McCormack, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Allen, Mrs. Georgia Dempsey, Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Dempsey and Linda, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Braden and Carla, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Keneipp, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Fulkerson, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Fulkerson, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Randolph, Mrs. Ruth Tolbert, Mrs. Ervan Johnson, Mrs. Nancy Horton, Mrs. George Brouillette, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Smith and daughters, Lenora, Rita, Lorene and Lorice, Mr. and Mrs. Hosea Simpson, Mrs. Blanch Hancock, Mrs. Freda Hancock;

Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Webb, Mrs. Nellie Hawkins Armstrong, Mrs. Gleada Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. George Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Lee McCormack, Mrs. Lula Randolph, Mr. and Mrs. Wilburn Fulkerson, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Duncan and four daughters, Miss Beverly June Spears, Miss Joan Marlene Keneipp, Mrs. Evelyn Keneipp, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Reed, Miss Vicky Kay Richy, Mrs. Lela Brogg and Mrs. Gladys Johnson;

Mrs. Mary Lou Braddock and son, Bobby Mack, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bush, Miss Barbara Hankins, Mr. and Mrs. Silbert Turner, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Burroughs, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Reynolds, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cavenider, Rev. and Mrs. Ernie Tison and three children, Mrs. Bobbie Gene Tolbert, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Gribble, Mrs. Alice Wilkie and mother, Dicky Purnell, Jerry Purnell, Mr. and Mrs. Bill G. Tucker and son, David Wayne, Mrs. Nell Eddy, and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Owen and son, Willie.

Many beautiful gifts were received from callers, and several sent presents who were unable to attend.

Mrs. Ownley Furman Hostess To Presbyterian Lenore Circle

The meeting Monday evening of the Lenore circle of the Presbyterian church was opened with the Year Book of Prayer devotion by the hostess, Mrs. Ownley Furman, who closed her devotion with several sentence prayers for the missionaries of the day.

Mrs. Nelle Meyers, social education and action secretary, had charge of the program of the evening and led in an interesting discussion of various community problems.

Following the program, the circle chairman, Mrs. Stella Brashears, conducted a short business meeting at which time members were requested to bring old nylon hose to be sent through the Harrisburg Council of Church Women to the widows of Japan, the majority of whom, the re-weaving of these old hose into various articles, is their sole source of income.

At the close of the business, the group joined in the Lord's Prayer, after which the hostess served delicious sugar plum cake and coffee to the following members: Mrs. Brashears, Mrs. Meyers, Miss Lelle Anderson, Miss Ada Cable, Mrs. Mildred Boicourt, Miss Gladys Gaskins, Miss Juanita Joiner, Miss Mary Morrison, Miss Edith Morrison, Miss Jean Selby, Miss Julia Williamson, Mrs. Louis Gall Jr. and Mrs. Steve Farrar.

Pride of Midway, No. 679, Sponsors Cake Walk

A large crowd attended the cake walk sponsored by the Pride of Midway Rebekah lodge, No. 679, Monday evening, Feb. 8, at the Dorrisville lodge hall.

For the affair two large tables were covered with approximately 35 cakes of different description. Several of the cakes, in keeping with the birthday of George Washington, were covered with bright red cherries, and some were in the shape of a heart because of the approaching valentine day.

Quite a few people were lucky enough to win two or more cakes; therefore, they kept one cake and gave the others back to the lodge for a dutch auction which was held after the cake walk.

All the proceeds went to the benefit of the lodge.

Bruno De Giacinto and Jack Vaughn of Harrisburg are surgical patients at the Thornton Minor hospital in Kansas City.

Pankeyville Baptist Naomi Ruth Class Has Social

Mrs. Alta Norman was hostess to the Naomi Ruth class of the Pankeyville Baptist church Friday night, Feb. 5.

During the regular business meeting which was conducted by Ruth Gates, the social books for the coming year were presented to the members.

Blanch Shacklett gave the devotion using the former Sunday school lesson for the scripture. Oma Myers and Fannie Owens led in prayer.

Charleen Norman was in charge of the recreation, and prizes were awarded to Blanch Shacklett, Gertrude Wasson and Nancy Sadler.

Refreshments were served to those mentioned and to Fannie Foster, Hattie Moyer and Mary Shell.

Past Officers Night at Eastern Star Thursday

At the stated meeting of Harrisburg chapter No. 671, Order of the Eastern Star, Thursday at 7:30 p. m. Mrs. Wendell Bramlet, worthy matron has announced that it will be a Valentine party for all past worthy matrons and patrons, several of whom have been invited to act as officers for Thursday evening. Refreshments will be served in the dining room after the business meeting. All past officers, present officers, members and visiting members are invited.

Inspiration Class Of Mt. Calvary Church Has Social

The Inspiration Sunday school class of the Mt. Calvary General Baptist church held its regular meeting Monday, Feb. 8, at the home of Harold Laney, the teacher, in Gaskins City.

Following the business session games were played with the winners receiving prizes. After the exchange of valentines, refreshments of cake, punch and favors were served to the following: Wilma Gibbons, Mrs. Paul Emery, Mrs. George Dudley, Maudene Cook, Donna Jenkins, Donita and Mary Matthews, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Laney and son, Bobby.

TUBERCULIN TESTING

Within the next two weeks tuberculin testing will be done in all thirteen high schools in the Egyptian Health Department area. The same type of program was offered in the high schools just about this same time last year but not enough students took advantage of the opportunity to take this test. The Egyptian Health Department sincerely hopes this year more students report for the test.

You may wish to know a little more about tuberculin testing. It is a skin test which tells the doctor whether or not the germs which cause tuberculosis are living or have lived in your body. The test is made by putting a tiny drop of germ free liquid called tuberculin into the skin, usually on the left forearm.

When the doctor looks at the test after three days he finds one of two things. (1) Nothing can be seen except perhaps a little redness of the skin. In this case there is no reaction. The germ which causes tuberculosis has not invaded your body. At some later time you may be asked to repeat this test. (2) Or the spot where the tuberculin was used is red and raised. This is a warning signal called a positive tuberculin reaction. At some time the germs which cause tuberculosis have entered your body, but this should not alarm you. It means that the doctor will ask you to have a chest X-ray or other tests so that it can be determined whether the disease is active or is healed.

According to public health standards 95 to 100% of the entire high school body should be tested with a tuberculin test where the test has not been done previously or has been done previously and the student was found to be a non-reactor.

All high school students who were tuberculin tested about this time last year and were positive reactors to the test should not be re-tested this year. Positive reactors usually remain positive the rest of their lives. Therefore it is not necessary to re-test them each year. They had a chest X-ray last year and will be given another chest X-ray this year.

All members of the personnel of the high school should have a chest X-ray annually. This is required by school boards in most places. This group includes all teachers, engineers, bus drivers, cooks, office employees and anyone else employed by the school.

Within the next few days every high school student in White, Saline and Gallatin counties will be given a consent slip to bring home to his parents for their signature. High school students are minors in age and they cannot receive the test without parental consent and authorization. This test is given free of charge in the school. But if the parents do not sign the consent slip or the high school student does not appear for the test it cannot be given. So you can see this is a community program, and Valentines of 100 Years Ago, Really Popped the Question!

Harvest moons and tender love songs have set the stage for Dan Cupid's greatest triumphs down through the ages. Yet, even until a century ago, sweethearts pining for a call to arms believed nothing served their purpose quite so well as a pumpkin-sized, lace-trimmed, flower-bedecked Valentine.

Delicately engraved love birds, pierced hearts and tiny cupids enhanced the more elegant creations—to which real wedding rings were often attached!

Love messages, convincing enough to be used in breach of promise suits, were tucked inside fancy little envelopes that some Valentines carried. But in most cases the bachelor penned his promise true around the inner border, or in blank spaces left open for this purpose.

Among the bride-seeking Valentines still in existence is one that we must all work together to get the best results.

Last year the percentages of tests done in high school student bodies of the three counties comprising the Egyptian Health Department area were as follows:

Saline county — 56.4%
White county — 40.6%
Gallatin county — 73.1%

Let us all work together this year to increase these standards.

ends its eloquent vows by asking: Yet most gentle Susie dare I Hope that we are doomed to marry?

If so it is, you'll find me true, Girl of my heart's love, gentle Sue! Since all lovers are not necessarily poets, many skipped the rhyme and meter approach. One rather formal proposal almost sounds like it was written on bended knee:

"If you will become my wife, I will be faithful and exercise pious duties, that good fortune and peace will grow and besides this, our house and wealth will profit by the work which we do."

Thus many a match was made—or lost! For if milady had other ideas her refusal was indicated by returning the Valentine with a tiny mitten attached as a keepsake. It was also customary to accept by answering on another Valentine in this manner:

Indeed you are very kind, I'm quite overjoy'd To know your mind—I did receive your Valentine. Now in return I send you mine.

Actually, this quaint form of courtship originated in England in the late 17th century. Americans adopted the custom, but its practice had died out by Civil War days.

Until ready-made Valentines appeared about 1800, rival swains depended on their skill with pen, scissors and pastepot. Gold and silver ornaments, the finest lace and embossed paper were imported from Europe. Elegant boxes came from fashionable Parisian shops.

Anonymous practical jokes inevitably sprung from this delicate situation. One trick was to sign crude, insult-bearing Comic Valentines with an innocent admirer's name. Another timely "sport" was the C. O. D. Valentine, which unlucky recipients discovered was only a handsome box of weeds—after paying the postage!

This year St. Valentine's Day falls on Sunday, February 14. It's still the most romantic date on our calendar, and for sweethearts planning to "pop the question" thousands of 1954 Valentines will plead:

Living alone can be Awfully monotonous— Don't you agree? What has it gotten us?

What Every Young Attorney Should Know

HATTIESBURG, Miss. AP— An attorney whose experience includes participation in 207 murder trials gives this advice to young lawyers: "Beware of the juror who is an old guy with one foot in the grave—he will electrocute you in a hurry."

Earl Wingo added that the most lenient juror generally is one under 40 with a good education. If he's fat, all the better.

"A fat man who laughs at almost anything and likes a good joke is good, too, for the defense lawyer," Wingo continued.

Skinny people generally won't do from the defense standpoint, Wingo added, especially if they have "little, old, mean faces."

"This type is inclined to wear horn-rimmed spectacles and go around studying and thinking all the time," Wingo said.

Any Way You Add It, It's Lot of Government

WASHINGTON AP—The Chamber of Commerce of the United States says there are 116,743 major units of government in this country.

This figure includes the federal government, the governments of the 48 states, 3,049 counties, 16,778 municipalities, 17,202 townships, 67,346 school districts, and 12,319 special districts.

The business organization said that if these figures were broken down into all principal subdivisions of government, the total would be many times 116,743.

The COC added that the federal government has 13 departments, nine agencies, 19 commissions, 29 administrations, 22 corporations, 630 offices, 127 services, 107 bureaus, 627 divisions, 32 branches, 58 boards, and 444 miscellaneous units such as missions, colleges, commands, and projects, a total of 2,117 segments.

IT HAPPENED IN SOUTHERN ILLINOIS: Lincoln in Jonesboro

By JOHN W. ALLEN

Southern Illinois University

Illinois claims Abraham Lincoln, whose birthday will be observed Friday, Feb. 12, and Stephen A. Douglas among her illustrious sons. Over many years they were political rivals and clashed as such on numerous occasions. One of their significant clashes occurred at a meeting in southern Illinois.

The place was the fair grounds, one-fourth mile north of the public square at Jonesboro, county seat of Union county. A stone marker now indicates the site. It was the third in the series of joint debates they were holding in their contest for a seat in the United States Senate, perhaps the most noted series of political debates in the nation's history.

The setting for this meeting was a simple one. There was a crude platform made of rough planks laid across logs in the shade of some large trees. There was no rail about the platform. The seats on it were plain, household chairs brought from nearby homes or from wagons where they had been used by those coming to hear the debate or to attend the county fair then in progress.

Rugged, Serious Listeners

A large table provided facilities for the shorthand writers. Tradition relates that there was no rostrum for the speakers. No bunting or flags draped the platform and there were few banners in evidence. Except for a small area in front of the platform where planks had been laid across logs, no arrangements had been made to seat the thousands or so who listened.

The majority of those present were plain folk of the later pioneer type, generally dressed in their Sunday best, when they had such, and freshly shaven. Some had trudged in from the nearby countryside, some had come on horseback or in carriages and still others on Illinois Central trains to the adjoining town of Anna.

The greater part of those present, however, had come in wagons drawn by oxen. One ox wagon making a rather long journey, was that of E. E. Trevillion, a staunch Lincoln supporter, who came with friends from Golconda in Pope county, more than 45 miles away, camping by the roadside at night. Although it was a group of rugged but serious listeners.

Special Coach for Douglas

Lincoln had arrived, as a regular passenger with only one known companion, a newspaper reporter, at the Anna railway station on the evening of Sept. 14 and had spent the night at the home of his friend, D. L. Phillips. Much of the evening was passed with friends and admirers at the Union hotel in Jonesboro. It was spent in telling stories, discussing political issues, forming plans, cultivating friendships and observing Donati's comet, then a prominent object in the night sky.

Douglas, who had recently spoken in Chester, had arrived in Cairo by steamboat on the fourteenth and spent the night there. On the morning of the fifteenth his special coach and a flatcar were attached to the northbound train. The special coach carried Douglas and his party. The flatcar carried a small brass cannon, attended by two men in semi-military uniform. It also carried Professor Terpinitz, jeweler and able musician from Jonesboro, and his band.

No Parade

On the trip north from Cairo the cannon was fired as the train approached each town, heralding the approach of Douglas and his party. The Douglas party then proceeded to Anna with a reasonable amount of fanfare. A small crowd was awaiting the train with carriages for at least a part of the group. A parade was formed, with the band leading, and the trip to the public square in Jonesboro was completed.

Shortly after the noonday meal the candidates and their supporters went to the fair grounds. There was no parade Douglas, appearing to be fatigued by the campaign, rode in a carriage. Lincoln and some friends walked along the pathway on the east side of the street. An old man, drawing upon his memories, left some interesting glimpses of the tall figure of the Lincoln he remembered, walking among friends, but with no one in particular, toward the place of meeting.

Crowd Favored Douglas

When Lincoln and Douglas met, the contrast in their physical appearance was striking. Douglas, short in stature and rather round, wore a broadbrimmed whitish hat, kid gloves, shining shoes and an elegant suit of clothes. His general appearance is recorded as imperious and haughty. Lincoln's clothes, though tasteful, were not nearly so nice appearing as those of Douglas. He wore a high topped hat that served to emphasize the difference in height of the two men. His carriage, though not so graceful as that of Douglas, was leisurely and relaxed, and added to the impression that he was a calm, capable and confident person.

The story of the Lincoln and Douglas debates has been told of ten and well. The number of listeners at Jonesboro was much the smallest in the series. The crowd was overwhelmingly favorable toward Douglas. The tenseness that was evident throughout the series was not relaxed here. Each candidate clearly indicated his high regard for the capabilities of the other. If any incident distinguished this debate, it was the fact that Lincoln succeeded in goading Douglas into a rather obvious display of temper.

After the debate Douglas returned to Cairo. Lincoln again spent the night with his friend, D. L. Phillips. The northbound train on the morning of the sixteenth carried the special coach of Douglas and the flatcar with its cannon. Lincoln boarded the train at Anna as a regular passenger. The Jonesboro debate was finished and awaiting its part in the Lincoln legend.

Estimates $4.5 Billion Cost for Farm Program

WASHINGTON (UP) — Chairman George D. Aiken of the Senate Agriculture Committee today put a $4,500,000,000 price tag for this year on President Eisenhower's farm program.

Even at that cost, Aiken said, it will be a bargain.

"It is better to pay that price than to continue to lose one to two billion dollars a year on the farm program," he said in an interview.

Once the Eisenhower Program is established, Aiken said, the annual cost should be held to around 500-million dollars a year.

"That will be a good investment if we can stabilize the farm economy," he said.

This is how Aiken figured the cost of initiating Mr. Eisenhower's farm program:

1. Establishment of a $2,500,000,000 reserve stockpile of surplus farm commodities now owned by the Commodity Credit Corp., the price-support agency. This stockpile would be isolated from commercial trade channels.

Increase CCC Funds

CCC estimated losses of 681 million dollars on stocks as of last June 30. Both House and Senate approved the write-off of that amount Tuesday and sent the bill to the White House.

2. Increase of CCC support funds by $1,750,000,000. The agency's present financial authority, $6,750,000,000, is exhausted. A bill authorizing the increase is pending in the Senate.

Mr. Eisenhower's farm program faces stiff congressional opposition, principally because of its proposal to offer a sliding scale of flexible price supports on most commodities. The idea is to discourage surpluses by offering less attractive government supports.

Aiken said, "We've got to do something to get current surpluses out of the way and to keep from accumulating more in the years ahead. If we don't, the market is going to be eternally depressed. That means the farmer will be in bad financial shape or the government's support costs will be awfully higher."

Francis and his nifty push-shot accounted for 59 points Tuesday night to lead little Rio Grande College to a 101-85 victory over Anderson College, and that gave Bevo a total of 988 points for the season to smash the record of 970 set in 1952 by Johnny O'Brien of Seattle.

Meanwhile, Idaho State became the first team to clinch a spot in the NCAA post-season title tourney as it clinched the Rocky Mountain Conference championship with a 71-54 victory over Colorado State.

The league title, second in a row for the Bengals, qualified them to meet an NCAA "member at large," yet to be selected, in a first-round playoff, March 8 or 9. Tuesday night's victory, paced by Jerry Belkowsky, 20 points, was the 18th straight for the Bengals since they lost their first two games of the season.

Notre Dame Wins
Although the pint-sized O'Brien, now serving in the Army, was stripped of his all-college season record he retains his major-college record of 884 points for a season, set last year when Seattle moved from "small" to "major" ranking. Bevo's total will be counted only in the small-college category.

George Washington University took charge of the Southern Conference race Tuesday night with a 102-97 victory over Furman at Greenville, S. C. Both teams had come up to the game unbeaten in league competition.

Key to the Colonials' win was that their star, Joe Holup, outscored Furman's Frank Selvy, the national scoring champion, 41-35.

Notre Dame and Holy Cross, two independent powers currently tied for the No. 8 ranking nationally, each came through with an important win. The Irish rallied from a four-point deficit at the start of the fourth period to beat Michigan State, 74-71, for their 13th win in 15 games as Dick Rosenthal showed the way with 24 points.

Holy Cross, held to a two-point margin at halftime, ran its record to 17-1 by trouncing Springfield, Mass., College, 92-68, as Ron Perry paced the attack with 25 points.

Other Games
In other leading games Tuesday night: Duke moved within one win of pacemaking Maryland in the Atlantic Coast Conference by beating North Carolina State, 90-89, on Don Tobin's push shot with five seconds to go; Rice put itself in position to challenge Texas for the Southwest Conference lead, Saturday night by beating Texas A&M, 61-47, pulling away with 10 points in the last 4-12 minutes; Wichita ran its record to 21-3 by trouncing Drake, 89-60; Wake Forest stayed in contention for the Atlantic Coast title by beating Clemson, 98-57; Wyoming's fading hopes of repeating as Skyline Conference champ were jolted again, this time by Denver, 60-49; Seattle extended the nation's longest winning streak to 24 games by beating Puget Sound, 85-72; Niagara trounced Siena, 74-50; Villanova edged Seton Hall, 61-59; Bradley whipped De Paul, 80-69; Baylor edged Texas Christian, 63-58; and Oklahoma beat Missouri, 80-78.

Ray Eliot Denies Plans to Leave U. of Illinois

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP)—An Omaha news dispatch said today that Ray Eliot, University of Illinois football coach, was being considered for University of Nebraska athletic director, but Eliot said he knew nothing about it and had no plans to leave Illinois.

The Omaha World-Herald said Eliot was ready to leave coaching for "a more secure post in the directorship field." The University of Nebraska has had only an acting director since George (Potsy) Clark resigned effective Feb. 1. "I like coaching football," said Eliot when told of the report. "I don't know anything about such a report, and I have not been contacted for the job at Nebraska."

Eliot said he had never heard of Dr. Walter Beggs, university athletic board chairman who reportedly was to contact him.

Eliot said he had no plans for leaving the coaching field and entering the occupation of athletic director, and no plans for leaving Illinois.

Wildcats Beat McLeansboro Foxes, 56 to 51

27th Victory in Row for Carrier Mills On Home Floor

Carrier Mills, with a good fourth quarter, overcame the strong McLeansboro Foxes last night, 56-51. The game was played at Carrier Mills and gave the Wildcats a clean sweep of the two-game series with the Foxes as the 'Cats won at McLeansboro, 71-69, Jan. 26.

The victory was the 27th in a row for the Wildcats on their home floor and gave the team a record for the season of 16 victories and only two losses.

Last night's game was all it was billed to be—a fast, hard fought affair between a couple of good clubs. McLeansboro features a crew of jump-shot artists, but the superior rebounding of Carrier Mills carried the 'Cats to victory.

Prior to last night, it is reported, McLeansboro, as a team, was shooting a red hot 496 with Millenbine hitting at the sensational pace of 506.

The game started as a basket-trading affair and as the opening quarter ran out Carrier Mills held a 14-13 lead, then Notes and Millenbine hit two quick ones and McLeansboro held a 17-14 advantage at the first rest stop.

During the second quarter each team scored 14 points and McLeansboro was on top 31-28 at half time.

At the half only 10 fouls had been called, five on each team and only twenty three fouls were called throughout the contest, 12 on Carrier Mills and 11 on McLeansboro. Carrier Mills deadlocked the count at 35-all with a little more than three minutes left to play in the third frame, then went ahead 37-35, but the Foxes then tied it at 37-37 and when the quarter closed the score read 40-40.

With Rollins connecting for four under-the-basket shots in the early part of the final frame Carrier Mills took a lead that was never overcome and at one time the 'Cats had extended their margin to 11 markers, then saw it reduced to five as time ran out with Carrier Mills holding a 56-51 victory.

McLeansboro took the preliminary game, 75-55.

Carrier Mills will be at home to Galatia Saturday night.

Galatia Subdues Thompsonville Tigers, 84 to 78

Bob Farris' Galatia quintet had to overcome a 12-point deficit before going ahead to subdue a stubborn Thompsonville five, 84-78, last night in the Bearcat goalry. A capacity crowd saw the two arch-rivals battle fiercely throughout the tiff.

Galatia had defeated the Tigers, 103-69, earlier in the season but found Coach Bob Munday's boys hard to handle in the second meeting.

Big Joe Upchurch garnered 28 points and Capt. Bob Orto flipped in 21 to lead the Bearcat cause. Jack Simpson and Jim Logsdon led the losers with 20 and 19 tallies respectively.

Thompsonville got off to a flying start and held a 24-16 edge at the end of the initial quarter. At one time in the second period, the Tigers held a 12-point command. Galatia sliced away at this lead and finally moved in front 40-38 just before the halftime buzzer.
Each club scored 22 points during the third period, leaving the Bearcats with a 62-60 advantage as the last canto opened. The Farisemen outscored their visitors, 22-18 in the final frame.

Pirates Sign Cooper to Handle Young Pitchers

By United Press
Veteran Walker Cooper, who doesn't believe in talking out of turn, got the "high sign" from Pittsburgh today, letting him know it was okay to tell people that he is officially with the Pirates.

For a while Tuesday, the 39-year old catcher played it mightily close to the vest.

First, the Pirates announced that they had signed Cooper, primarily to handle their young pitchers, and that the husky backstop had predicted he would see action in "at least 75 games."

Contacted at his Buckner, Mo., home, Cooper who was recently released by Milwaukee, said he didn't know anything about signing with the Pirates.

But in Pittsburgh, Jim Long, Pirate publicist, explained that Cooper had "come to terms" with General Manager Branch Rickey over the telephone and that Rickey had asked Cooper not to mention the deal until the Pirates could announce it. He added that Cooper agreed to come to Pittsburgh if he was not claimed by the time his waiver ran out, and the waiver ran out Tuesday morning.

Long said Cooper probably was being "overly cautious" about announcing his new affiliation because of Rickey's request.

At the same time, the Pirates announced the signing of pitcher Paul Pettit, the $100,000 bonus disappointment, and outfielder Gail Henley.

Pitcher Carl Erskine, who set a new World Series strikeout record against the Yankees last fall, signed his contract with Brooklyn, thereby becoming the 29th Dodger to agree to terms.

The Dodgers also signed Dick Draper, a 19-year-old right-handed pitcher from Macon, Ga. He will report to the Dodgers' Thomasville club of the Class D Georgia-Florida League.

Southpaw Dave Koslo and right-hander Al Corwin signed their contracts with the Giants, becoming the 22nd and 23rd players on the club to do so. Koslo, with the Giants longer than any other current player, won 6 games and lost 12 last season while Corwin, used chiefly in relief, posted a 6-4 record.

Rookie pitcher Tom Hurd, who won 17 and lost 11 with Memphis of the Southern Association last season, was the 36th player on the White Sox to agree to terms. Simultaneously, General Manager Frank Lane said that a new contract had been forwarded to outfielder Minnie Minoso in Havana, Cuba, and Minoso had sent word that he would decide whether or not to sign it "in a day or two."

Lane also ordered White Sox shortstop Chico Carrasquel to discontinue playing ball in the Venezuelan winter league so that he would be able to rest before reporting to spring training.

Only 10 unsigned Milwaukee players remained following the signing of right-hander Bob Buhl and catcher Del Crandall. Buhl compiled a 14-4 record with the Braves last season while Crandall batted .272 in 116 games.

Other signees were pitcher Bob Turley of Baltimore; catcher Smokey Burgess of the Phillies; and pitchers Al Aber and Bob Cruze of Detroit.

Norris City Trips Ridgway Eagles, 51 to 49

Despite Dick Sturgill's 27-point performance, Ridgway's Eagles went down to defeat last night at Norris City, losing to the host team, 51-49.

Ridgway led most of the game but four personals on Don Hise slowed the Eagles considerably. Sturgill turned in his best game of the year as he sparked the Penman-coached club.

Outscore County Rivals In Second Half for Season's Second Victory

A Harrisburg Bull Dog team that would not be beaten won its second basketball contest of the year, an 81-73 victory over Eldorado last night in Davenport gym.

The locals, to win, put on a last-half surge that netted them 48 points in the final two quarters. They were ahead but one point, 65-64, with a little less than three and a half minutes remaining in the contest but at that point drove hard to drop in 16 points while holding Eldorado to nine and won by an eight-point margin.

With Ronnie Riegel, who was high for the locals with 23 points, making ten of his points the first quarter, Harrisburg held a 19-18 lead when the first period ended.

But Eldorado's big Paul Mackovjak, who was leading scorer of the night with 28, hit for 10 points, too, in the second period and Eldorado outscored the locals 18-14 to take a three-point 36-33 lead at halftime.

Pull Into Lead
The first part of the third quarter was close but shortly before midday Harrisburg tied the count at 41-41 and then pulled into a 51-43 lead with three minutes left in this frame. Eldorado started narrowing the gap, however, and trailed by only 55-52 at the end of the third period.

However, Harrisburg was never headed although the Eagles moved to 62-61 and 65-64 before the Bull Dogs pulled out into a more comfortable lead.

The locals played one of their best games of the year in this contest against the only team they had beaten this season — by a one-point margin. However, Eldorado had beaten Harrisburg by seven points in the Saline county tournament.

Rebounding by Dave Anglin and Gerald Wasson, before Wasson fouled out in the third quarter, and the dash and drive of Ronnie Riegel featured the local game. The all-around play of Mackovjak and the sharp-shooting of Ron McRoy with his push shots was outstanding for Eldorado.

Eldorado Wins Preliminary
Ronnie Williams, sophomore who went into the game for Harrisburg late in the contest, got two baskets at a time when they were needed to pull out against the Eagles.

However, the locals did some wild playing the last few minutes when they had a lead, that could have proved disastrous had not some of the more dubious shots went into the basket.

The Eldorado freshman-sophomore team won the preliminary, but the night before at Eldorado the HTHS freshman teams won both games.

Last night the Bull Pups were beaten 48-43. Eldorado led 12-16 at the quarter, 22-19 at halftime and 41-36 at the end of the third quarter. For Harrisburg, Jack Wright had 8, Bennie Fulkerson 12, Bill Bottomley 5, Joe Morris 6, Bryan Jones 4, Everett Evans 1, Don McGowan 6, Fred McKenzie 1 and Johnny Ziegler 0.

Centralia Here Friday Night
At Eldorado Thursday night the local frosh won the main contest 49-45. They trailed 16-8 at the quarter and the score was tied 22-22 at the half. Eldorado led 39-35 at the end of the third quarter but Harrisburg overcame the lead in the final stanza.

Charles Cummins had 7 points, Jim Cummins 4, Bobbie Shewmake 2, Trevor Whiteside 2, Bill Bottomley 12, Bennie Fulkerson 7, Bryan Jones 4, Wayne Stone 7, Johnny Ziegler 2 and Harry Aldridge 2.

In the frosh preliminary Harrisburg won 49-37, leading 11-10 at the quarter, 26-20 at halftime and 38-28 at the end of the third quarter. Melvin Hicks had 11 points, Larry Healy 9, Jack Weatherly 9, Joe Karnes 13, Harry Aldridge 2, Herbie Parks 4 and Gary Crews 1.

Friday night the Bull Dogs will entertain Centralia in a South-West contest and Saturday evening will play at Mt. Carmel.

THEY'RE ALL GOOD SHOTS: Grayville Bisons Boast Perfect Record Of 23 Wins With Experienced Squad

By BOB ULLRICH
United Press Sports Writer
GRAYVILLE, Ill. (AP) — Experience, plus good shooting ability spread over the entire team, has enabled Grayville high school's basketball team to roll up a record of 23 wins and no losses this season.

The Bisons swept to a 68-47 win over Albion Tuesday night with the same ease which marked many of their victories this season.

There may be a better win-loss record somewhere among other Illinois prep teams, but even if there is the fierce pride Grayville fans have for their team won't lessen.

Coach Bill Schnute, in his fourth year as coach here, says his team rolled up its record mainly on "experience plus the fact that all of them are pretty fair shots."

"Any one of these boys can score 20 points in a game," the 39-year-old coach said. "And it's impossible for an opponent to concentrate on any one of our boys. The others can take over the shooting."

Drilled on Rebounds
Schnute's five starters have played together since they were freshmen. Sherill Tate, a slim, 5-foot 11-inch guard, leads in scoring with a 17.5 point average. Close behind is center Finis McComas with 16.6 points, but he has played one less game than Tate.

Forwards Dave Potter and Jim Kepley and guard Van Munsey round out the combination.

Schnute also has drilled his team well on the importance of rebounds. The Bisons often get four or five shots at the basket with Potter being the mainstay on rebounding.

Muddy Loses to Carmi, 82-34, in Regional Tourney

Carmi and Grayville, with victories over Muddy and Ridgway respectively, marched into the semi-final round of the regional grade school game tournament being staged at Carmi.

This completes the semi-final bracket, to be played this evening, with Harrisburg facing Norris City and Carmi vs. Grayville. Harrisburg and Norris City were winners in first round competition Monday.

Last night Carmi overpowered Muddy, 82-34 and Grayville edged past Ridgway, 49-44.

Consolation and championship games will be played Thursday.

To Televis State Tournament, Final, Semi-Final Games

CHICAGO (AP)—Basketball fans in Illinois will again see the finals and semi-finals of the State High School Basketball tournament.

Al Willis, executive secretary of the IHSAA, said arrangements had been completed to televise the games for the third straight year, on March 20.

Both semi-final games will be shown. The first will be telecast at 1 p. m. and the final game and consolation contest at 7:30 p. m. The Illinois Bell Telephone Co. will again sponsor the program.

Equality Crowns Queen, Defeats Cave, 49 to 47

Equality's Cardinals made their basketball Queen-crowning night a complete success last evening by rallying in the final quarter to defeat Cave-in-Rock, 49-47. It was the first victory for "Kay" Willis' cagers since early December and brought to an end a Cardinal nine-game losing streak.

The coronation program was held between games. Members of the squad — Marshall Glover, Ray Crayne, Ronnie Milligan, Allen Porter, Edgar Joyner and Larry Bishop — formed an honor guard.

The queen, Miss Barbara Roe, was escorted by Barney Barnett. Ken Woolley placed the crown, giving official recognition to the "royalty."

Stork Express

WALLINGFORD, Conn. (AP)—When Everett Beeman received an emergency call that the stork was on the way, he was in Hartford, 30 miles from home, and without an automobile.

Ingenuity solved his problem. On a large piece of cardboard he drew a picture of a stork and under it he printed the name of his town. Then he stood at the side of the highway, hoping to hitchhike a ride.

An understanding father picked him up and took him to the hospital, where he arrived seven hours ahead of the stork.

James Roosevelt Flies to N.Y., After Talk with Mother

NEW YORK (AP)—James Roosevelt flew here today on a business mission which he said was not connected with his West Coast marital troubles.

The eldest son of the late President arrived after a stopover in Chicago where he held a 90-minute family conference Tuesday.

Roosevelt said he was in New York to attend a "routine" trustees meeting on matters relating to his father's estate.

He said: "It's useless to try to draw me out. I have no further comment on my marital problems or my own political plans."

He said he talked with his mother in Chicago but did not talk with his brother, Franklin, either by phone or in person.

Asked if his marital troubles had caused any estrangement from Franklin, James smiled and said, "No, not at all."

James and his mother, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, met for dinner in her Blackstone hotel suite Tuesday but refused to comment on the conference. His brother, Rep. Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr. (D-N.Y.) was in town for a speaking engagement, but James said he did not attend the dinner.

It was thought possible that Mrs. Roosevelt pressed her son to make an out-of-court settlement with his estranged wife, Romelle Roosevelt, who accused him of adultery with a dozen women, before her separate maintenance suit returns to court next Monday.

Ladies' Night Observed by Kiwanis Club

Ladies' night was observed by the Kiwanis club last night at the Masonic temple with a large number of Kiwanians, their wives and special guests present.

Entertainment consisted of readings by Miss Marjorie Zimmer and Miss Judy Bell, both district speech contest winners at the Harrisburg Township high school.

Mrs. J. J. Klein was awarded a guest prize and Mrs. Tom Davenport, a special guest, was awarded a gift of flowers.

Table decorations in keeping with the valentine season were the work of President John Schork, who received congratulations from those present.

Special guests at the meeting were Dr. and Mrs. S. H. Frazier Sr., guests of Mr. and Mrs. Loy Barger, and Mr. and Mrs. Bob Davenport and Mr. and Mrs. Tom Davenport, guests of Mr. and Mrs. L. N. Davenport.

Ike's Proposal for 18-Year-Old Vote Puts Spotlight on Youth of Georgia

By HENRY LESENE
NEA Special Correspondent
ATLANTA, Ga. (NEA)—Since they bear arms in defense of their country, should 18-year-olds be allowed to vote?

For several years now college campuses have buzzed with the question. It has, in fact, reached the deliberative or debate stage in several of the state legislatures.

Now that President Eisenhower has proposed to Congress that it submit a constitutional amendment to the states reducing the voting age in the United States from 21 to 18, the question is going to be repeated a great deal more—on Capitol Hill as well as in the state legislatures.

From the standpoint of experience, only one state can now attempt to answer the question of whether the age should be lowered. Georgia has been permitting 13-year-olds to vote since 1944.

The youngsters' voting is accepted as a matter of course in Georgia. No one gives it much thought, one way or the other. The President's recommendation, however, has stirred some public comment in Georgia on the Georgia practice.

It's all pretty much the same. "The experiment has worked very well," comments the Atlanta Constitution editorially. "Georgians, in general, have never regretted the day they lowered the voting age to 18," says the Augusta Chronicle. People in public life willing to comment have had about the same thing to say.

However, some public officials in the South as well as others, have indicated that should the proposal for a lower voting age meet general approval in the South, the region's traditional attitude on states' rights would likely favor individual state action rather than an amendment to the federal constitution.

They take the position that any state can act to change the voting age, just as Georgia did, and that there is no need for the federal constitution to set a voting age.

Georgia, without a great deal of ado, lowered its voting age to 18 during the administration of Gov. Ellis Arnall who, incidentally, was the youngest governor in the U. S. at the time, and the question then was pretty much as it is now:

"If a youth is old enough to bear arms at 18, isn't he old enough to vote?"

It was argued then, as now, that many young Americans at 18 have completed their formal schooling and are earning their own living and even supporting families, as marriages in the late 'teens are not uncommon.

But one of the main points made by the advocates of a lower age

Adult Shorthand Class to Begin at Eldorado Feb. 15

Miss Rose Colombo, commerce teacher at the Eldorado Township high school, has set Monday, Feb. 15, as registration date for all people who are interested in taking "intermediate" shorthand. It will be decided on that night when the class will meet. Registration will be in the typing room.

This course is being offered to all adults in this area by the Vocational-Technical Institution of Southern Illinois university. The cost of the 12 weeks course is $6.00.

Further information concerning this class may be had by calling Miss Colombo at the Eldorado high school or at 241W Eldorado.

BOBBY-SOX VOTERS have been commonplace in Georgia since 1944, when these teen-age girls lined up in Atlanta to take advantage of the first election in which 18-year-olds could vote.

was that today's youth, as well as adults, are better informed than earlier generations, due in large measure to a continuing process of adult education provided by the mass media of newspapers, periodicals, radio, and TV.

Shortly after Georgia lowered its voting age to 18, for a very brief time 18-year-olds were authorized to vote in neighboring South Carolina, but only in the Democratic primaries, under rules set annually by the state party organization.

Three years ago a proposed amendment to the state constitution in North Carolina, lowering the voting age to 18, was defeated

Farm Bureau to Mobilize for Flexible Supports

WASHINGTON — President Allan B. Kline said today the American Farm Bureau Federation will "mobilize" its 1,591,777 farm family members in support of flexible farm price supports and "is going to convert everyone it can in Congress."

Kline told a news conference he is "optimistic" that the flexible system endorsed by the administration and the bureau will be successful in Congress.

He was asked if the Farm Bureau is embarking on a "pressure" campaign on members of Congress.

"We are going to discuss the issue with them firmly," Kline said.

He also said he personally favors trade

Government Surveys Tobacco Habits Of 300,000 World War One Veterans

WASHINGTON — More than 80,000 World War I veterans have replied so far to a questionnaire on tobacco habits which was sent out by government scientists seeking to establish the relationship if any between smoking and lung cancer.

Dr. Harold Dorn, chief of the biology office at the National Institutes of Health, said today that replies are coming in at the rate of about 7,000 every 24 hours.

with Russia, when it is to "mutual advantage." He said the Farm Bureau board of directors will take up this matter at its next meeting beginning March 31.

Indicated he favors lowering dairy price supports beginning April 1, saying that "any support program which continues to pile up surpluses is not in the interest of producers in the long run."

World War I vets were picked for the survey because they are reaching the ages at which cancer is most likely to appear if it is going to. They were picked also for the statistical fact that their death certificates will be available for checking against the survey results sooner than those of veterans of more recent wars.

Since Jan. 20 the National Cancer Institute, a division of the National Institutes of Health, and the Veterans Administration have been polling 300,000 veterans in an attempt to determine how many heavy smokers develop lung cancer. The VA has sent questionnaires to 200,000 World War I veterans with government life insurance policies, and will send another 100,000 this week.

Dorn said he is "very encouraged with the response" and expects 50 to 80 per cent of veterans polled to answer the questions. So far, he said, only a "negligible number" of veterans replying have refused to fill out the questionnaires.

Some veterans without government insurance policies have volunteered to tell their smoking habits, he said.

The questionnaires carry an appeal by VA Administrator Harvey V. Higley to "cooperate in a scientific study which will almost certainly yield results of great importance to medicine and public health."

Study Other Diseases

Though the survey is aimed primarily at determining whether heavy smoking may lead to lung cancer, government scientists also will study any relationship between tobacco and other diseases, such as cancer of the mouth, other lung ailments, heart diseases, and ulcers, Dorn said.

No results are expected for at least a couple of years.

The smoking histories will be checked against the veterans' death certificates in the future to determine how many of those polled developed lung cancer or other diseases and what percentage were heavy smokers.

Dorn said no breakdown has been made yet of heavy smokers among the 80,000 who have replied so far. From a quick glance thru some replies, he said, he is "impressed by the number who have stopped smoking."

Plentiful Plants

Costa Rica, which has an area of only 23,000 square miles, has almost one-half as many species of flowering plants as have the United States and Canada combined.

That's One Way of Disposing of It

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

by DREW PEARSON

DREW PEARSON Says: Ike's Chief Economic Adviser Foresees Upward Business Trend; Senator Morse Takes Costly Crack At Texas Colleagues; Indo-China Crisis Worries White House.

WASHINGTON. — Sedate and scholarly Dr. Arthur Burns, the ex-Columbia professor, now chief of Ike's council of economic advisers, went to great pains in explaining to senators why he had to testify about business recession in secret.

Then, after finally getting permission to talk in secret, he told the senators almost nothing they hadn't already heard in public.

Dr. Burns, appearing before the joint committee on the economic report, explained that he had been searching his soul as to whether to testify at all. The way he looked at it, he had a confidential relationship with the President. However, he had given the matter deep thought. Since cabinet officers are expected to testify, Burns decided he, too, had an obligation to appear before Congress — if requested. However, he had to insist that no transcript be taken of his remarks.

Senator Douglas of Illinois, an ex-professor of economics at the University of Chicago, promptly challenged him. Burns then went into a lengthy explanation, pointing out that in speaking off-the-cuff, he was apt to oversimplify a complex situation or to state an idea more positively than it ought to be expressed. Therefore, he preferred to keep his remarks informal. If a transcript were made, he said, it would make his testimony appear more formal than it actually would be.

There was also the possibility, he continued, that he might say something that would appear to be in contradiction of the President's economic report. He hastened to assure that he didn't mean he disagreed with the President's report in any detail. But in the course of speaking, he said, some statement of his might come out on the record that would appear to contradict the President. If that happened, he added solemnly, and his remark were made permanent in transcript form, he would feel constrained to resign within the hour.

Senator Douglas started to object further, but Senator Flanders of Vermont urged that Dr. Burns be given the right to testify without even a transcript being taken. As a result, Burns was allowed to proceed behind closed doors without his words being recorded. However, his testimony was perfectly safe and could have been transcribed without embarrassing the President or anyone else.

Burns didn't deviate an iota from the President's economic report. He admitted that we are going through what he called a "mild contraction." But he insisted there is no reason to believe it will become any more severe, and there is good reason to believe the economy will start picking up again in late spring or early summer.

A BULL BETWEEN SENATORS
Wayne Morse of Oregon, the lone independent senator, spoke in Austin, Texas, the other day where he paid tribute to the two Texas senators — in terms they didn't appreciate. Morse referred to Sen. Price Daniel as "representing the Texas oil lobby," and to Lyndon Johnson as "representing only himself."

After the speech, Morse remarked to Texas friends: "That speech cost me $1,000."

Asked for an explanation, Morse told how he was at a dinner at home of Senator Kefauver when Price Daniel came up and said: "I understand you raise Devon cattle."

Morse replied that he did, and Senator Daniel went on to say that he and his brother wanted to experiment with crossing Devon bulls and Brahman cows in order to produce the best beef brand in the southwest.

"That's the test the University of Florida has also worked on," Morse observed.

"Have you got any Devon bulls you want to sell?" Daniel asked.

"Sure, I've got two of the best bulls in the east," Morse replied. "They're young, but they took the top prizes at the recent fair in southern Maryland. I'll sell 'em for $500 each."

"All right," said the senator from Texas. "I'll come out and take a look at them. They're probably just what I need."

"So you can understand," Morse told his Texas friends, "that Senator Daniel, after what I said about him, is not going to pay me $1,000 for my two bulls."

INDO-CHINA DILEMMA
From two different sources,

President Eisenhower has received increasingly disturbing reports about the situation in Indo-China. It is so bad that he has been seriously considering sending U. S. troops to Indo-China to train native troops.

One report to the White House has come from John Foster Dulles in Berlin who says the French assembly is getting nearer the point where it will vote to pull out of Indo-China altogether, abandoning it to the Communists. Dulles has warned that something must be done quickly or the French will take just such a step.

The second report comes from the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Adm. Arthur Radford, who claims that the real solution in Indo-China is the efficient training of native troops. Radford proposes sending a top U. S. military man, with experience in either Greece or Korea, to train Indo-Chinese natives.

This would save French lives, and, he believes, would result in some real resistance against the Chinese-equipped Communists who since the end of the Korean war have received trainload after trainload of munitions, obviously diverted from the Korean front.

Radford's plan is now under study by the National Security Council, which feels strongly that something must be done to prevent communism from overrunning all of southeast Asia. However, Eisenhower is loath to send American troops to Indo-China even for training purposes. So far there has been no decision.

WASHINGTON PIPELINE
Foreign Minister Eden has reported to Prime Minister Churchill that the Berlin conference may not wind up a complete flop after all. Eden says that Foreign Minister Molotov has secretly hinted he wants to conclude some trade agreements for non-strategic goods from Britain.

Secretary of State Dulles can't find anyone to head the overseas library program since Senator McCarthy began sabotaging it. So far, nine people have turned the job down. The new hydrogen-bomb tests to be conducted at Eniwetok early next month will cost the government between $80,000,000 and $100,000,000.

More than 3000 members of the tribe occupy the 63,000 acres of the Cherokee Indian reservation in the Great Smokies.

Draft Cut Can't Be Expected Until 1956, Says Manpower Chief Hannah

From NEA Service Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Reduced draft calls cannot be expected until fiscal year 1956, and "are expected to average 18,000 for the next six months," according to John A. Hannah, Assistant Secretary of Defense for Manpower. The 18,000 figure is the same as that announced for February, the lowest since June, 1952.

Hannah made his prediction in a question-and-answer session with NEA's Washington Bureau, in which for the first time he specifically relates manpower goals to the new budget. The questions and Hannah's answers follow.

Q. Does the new military budget which calls for a reduced Army mean that draft calls will be reduced?

A. Not necessarily. Draft calls are determined by the need for replacement of losses due to expiration of term of services less the number who enlist voluntarily and less reenlistments. Therefore, a change in end strength goals does not in itself indicate the size of draft calls.

Q. When can you look forward to reduced draft calls? What will they average for the next six months?

A. Draft calls are expected to average 18,000 for the next six months. We cannot expect reduced draft calls until fiscal year 1956, a year in which losses through expiration of term of service are relatively light.

Q. Does the cut in the size of the Army mean that draftees will start going into the Air Force and Navy?

A. No. Men will not be drafted for the Air Force and Navy as long as vacancies can be filled with voluntary enlistees.

Q. Does the so-called "new look" which places greater emphasis on use of newer, more comlicated weapons mean that the mental level of draftees will be raised?

A. No. While it would be desirable from the standpoint of the services to raise the standards, there is no plan to adopt new criteria at present.

Q. Is there any plan to raise or lower the physical standards for draftees?

A. No. Physical standards are the same now as they were at the peak strength in World War II when were were scraping the bottom of the manpower barrel. It is the opinion of the Department of Defense that we cannot economically lower the standards further.

Q. Is the supply of men currently reaching draft age satisfying the needs for new men?

A. Yes.

Q. What is the draft outlook during the next six months for the various age groups?

A. It is expected that calls will be filled during the next six months primarily from registrants 20 years of age. It may be necessary to call a few 19-year-olds. Also some older men previously deferred will be called.

Q. Has the end of the fighting in Korea had any effect on the enlistment rate? On the reenlistment rate?

A. Apparently not. Enlistment and reenlistment rates continue to fluctuate about as they did in fiscal year 1953 and early fiscal year 1954 and no definite trend has developed.

Q. Is there any plan to ask Congress for an extended or reduced period of service for draftees?

A. No. The Department of Defense strongly supports the present 24-month period, as being the minimum economical, useful period of service.

Q. Is there any plan to ask Congress to change the draft age limits?

A. No. The present age limits are providing adequate numbers and no factors have developed indicating the advisability of a change.

Lincoln Was Poor Speller, Eastern Illinois College Dep't Head Says

CHARLESTON, Ill. (AP) — A "very horrid and melancholy dis-closer" was made Monday about Abraham Lincoln.

He wasn't much of a speller. Dr. Charles H. Coleman, head of the social science department at Eastern Illinois State College, said he came to this sad conclusion after studying the collected works of Abraham Lincoln, published by Rutgers University in 1953.

In the 12 years after Lincoln became 22, "he slipped up on a total of 60 words," Coleman said.

Nevertheless, Coleman said, "Honest Abe" could have spelled down most modern high school students and "plenty" of college students.

Thrown By "Verry" Coleman, a Lincoln expert, said Lincoln "had trouble with begin-ning, and 'verry' threw him" 29 times during those 19 years.

Other mistakes Lincoln made were "confering, defered, privilege and repeld."

Dorrisville Baptist Bethel Class Meets

The Bethel class of the Dorrisville Baptist church met at the home of Mrs. Reba Hull Monday evening. The program opened with the group singing "We'll Work Till Jesus Comes," which was followed by prayer offered by Mrs. Vivian Coget.

During the brief business session socials were planned for the full year, and roll call was answered with scripture verses.

The devotion, taken from first Corinthians, 13th chapter, was presented by Mrs. Kathleen Barker, and closed with prayer by Mrs. Ava Lyons.

Games were enjoyed and mystery pal gifts were received by the following: Mrs. Sybil Speak and son, Gregory, Mrs. Laverne Cooper and daughter, Sheryl Lynn, Mrs. Pearl Young, Mrs. Elizabeth Ledbetter, Mrs. Margaret Shelton, Miss Joy Randolph, Mrs. Eva Logsdon and daughter, Carol, Mrs. Olivia Owens, Mrs. Bernie Pickering, Mrs. Vivian Coget, Mrs. Ava Lyons, Mrs. Pauline Cox and Mrs. Kathleen Barker.

Miss Shirley Harlow Weds Ernest Bryant

On Sunday, Feb. 7, at 2:30 p. m. Miss Shirley Harlow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Harlow of Eddyville, became the bride of Ernest Bryant, M. M. 1-c, son of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Bryant of Buckingham, Va.

The double-ring wedding ceremony was performed at the bride's home before a large picture window by the Rev. John Yuhas of Harrisburg in the presence of the immediate family.

The bride was attired in a white linen street-length dress with navy accessories. Her corsage was of pink gladioli, and she wore a single strand of pearls, a gift of the bridegroom.

Mr. and Mrs. Dale Rinehart of St. Louis, Mo., brother-in-law and sister of the bride, were the only attendants.

Mrs. Rinehart chose a dress of turquoise and black accessories. She wore a corsage of yellow gladioli.

Mrs. Harlow, mother of the bride, was adorned in a dress of navy with black accessories and wore a corsage of white gladioli.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the bride's home. The table was decorated with a lovely two-tiered wedding cake topped by a miniature bride and bridegroom.

The couple left immediately after the wedding for a short trip after which they will return to Eddyville for a visit before going to Buckingham, Va., home of the bridegroom's parents.

They plan to go from Virginia to Charleston, S. C., where Mr. Bryant is stationed.

The bride, who attended the Goldsboro high school, is the granddaughter of Mrs. Lenora Harlow of Harrisburg.

Mrs. Ralph Brown Reviews New Lincoln Book

At the February meeting of the Michael Hillegas chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, which was held Monday night at the home of the resident, Mrs. Clyde Wilmoth, Mrs. Ralph Brown gave an excellent and timely review of Ruth Painter Randall's "Mary Lincoln," a biography of a marriage.

From recently released letters and diaries, the author gives a new sympathetic account of a Mary Lincoln much in love with her husband. Mrs. Brown said the author looks upon her book as presenting newly found evidence in the new trial to which Mary Lincoln is entitled and proves how malicious and entirely without foundation are some of the unkind stories about Mary Todd Lincoln.

Mrs. Harley Shepherd gave a meditation based on portions of the sixth chapter of Luke.

Mrs. J. V. Capel, representing the Red Cross, stressed the importance of the blood bank to Saline county and asked members to help in getting blood donors.

Mrs. Nellie Cline urged members to attend the Woman's club tea on Feb. 22 at the home of Mrs. Hudson Muge.

Mrs. Harold Kingery told of plans for a benefit card party to be sponsored by Wheel and Distaff with the help of Michael Hillegas chapter at a time and place to be announced later.

The hostesses, assisted by Mrs. Raymond Foster and Mrs. Fred Lindsay, served refreshments to 14 members and one guest, Mrs. Anthony Blass of Carrier Mills.

New 'Rules of the Road' Booklet Available to Illinois Motorists

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. — Secretary of State Charles F. Carpenter today announced the publication of a completely new "Rules of the Road" booklet issued by his office.

The new booklet summarizes Illinois traffic laws and operator and chauffeur licensing procedures, Secretary Carpenter said. It places considerable emphasis on the state's new Driver License Act, passed by the 1953 session of the General Assembly, explaining the law and pointing out the violations which may result in a driver losing his license.

New illustrations are used liberally throughout the booklet to help drivers understand traffic safety rules and practices easily, Mr. Carpenter said.

"Rules of the Road" can be used as an instruction book for persons just learning to drive as well as for "refresher" study by those who have driven for many years, Secretary Carpenter said. In addition to calling attention to traffic laws, it contains many tips on traffic safety to help drivers avoid situations which might result in accidents, Mr. Carpenter said.

THE STORY: Grete Marratt, a fugitive from justice, takes the identity of Luke Usher, a man he resembles. Usher had disappeared 15 years ago accusing Clem Ryerson of murdering his father. Ryerson, owner of the Wineglass ranch, has a reputation as a range hog and Marratt discovers that all of the Usher cattle had been sold to Beckwith, an Indian agent. Before the interview with Beckwith, Marratt had seen an Indian girl in Beckwith's office. In an attempt to follow Beckwith to Wineglass, Marratt comes upon this Indian girl struggling in the embrace of Chuk Crakin, the Wineglass foreman. Marratt rescues the girl, then discovers that Crakin apparently had been waiting for her.

It was about 10 when Marratt rode into the Usher yard. Moonlight dappled the buildings with silver but Marratt right then had no eye peeled for beauty. He was weary in mind as well as in body and had to just about pry himself out of the saddle; but he was too much a cowboy not to care for his horse.

That cracked rib hurt but he forgot all about it when he stepped onto the stoop. In the center of the door there was a fluttering square of paleness that made a sound like flapping paper. Marratt's bleak eyes narrowed and he stood there several moments before he at last pulled it loose and went inside and eased the door shut. Only then did he strike a match.

Block letter had been inscribed with a pencil. USHER: KEEP RIDING IF YOU WANT TO KEEP BREATHING.

He was still staring at it when he realized he wasn't alone.

"Put that light to a lamp."

Marratt crossed to the wall and lifted the lamp's chimney. He rubbed the flame across the wick.

Only then did he face the sound of the voice to find Gainer eying him across a cocked pistol.

The man motioned toward a chair. "Take the load off your feet. We've got some rag-chewin' to do."

"You put this thing on the door."

Gainer grinned. "Not me. That was one of your other friends."

His sly eyes brightened with a secret amusement. "You're lucky, at that. Mostly, around here, they just hang up the crepe."

"You're wasting your time," Marratt told him. "You made me your offer and—"

"I made you an offer," Gainer remarked pointedly. "Nothing to keep me from makin' you another."

Marratt said flatly, "I'm not selling this place."

"What took you over to the Malicora agency?"

"I don't consider that any of your business."

Anger's roan stain crept through the black of Gainer's whiskers. Resentment plowed through his tone. "You better take another squint at your hole-card! You're playin' a wolf's game that's goin' to get rougher an' you're like to hev need of all the help you can get here."

"I'll pick my own help, thank you."

Gainer grinned through his tangle of whiskers. "I got a stake in this business myself; I got my back ag'in' the same wall you hev. That should make us compadres if notbin' else would. Ryerson's usin' this place an' one way or another, he means to hev mine."

"I don't see it," Marratt said. "I've been given to understand Ryerson's pretty powerful. If he wants your place why doesn't he grab it?"

"I ain't got no oil man to be killed like Jake Usher; an' I'm still squattin' on mine. I ain't aimin' to skip out."

He let that sink in, his eyes watching Marratt blandly. "Besides," he said abruptly, "he kinda fancies the governor's chair an' till Murphey's term's up, he'd prefer to slide around the strongarm stuff an' let things simmer in the status quo."

"That's why someone tried to drygulch me?"

Gainer's hooded eyes widened. But he said coolly, "You kin see for yourself he wouldn't want no old scandals bein' dug up around here now."

"Suppose you come to the point," Gainer peered at him, frowning.

"Well," he said gruffly, "I'd like to hev this spread outright, but if you're bound to hang onto it I'll buy in as partner."

If Ryerson didn't want trouble right now there was a fair to middling chance he wouldn't buck too strenuously any move on Marratt's part to rid Usher range of Wineglass cattle. Gainer, he reckoned, would be counting on that. He wasn't exactly figuring to throw his money away.

"You'd be more apt to consider my end if I had a stake in your outfit. There's nothin' wrong with your spread that a little money wouldn't cure," said Gainer.

"Just what do you propose?"

"A fifty-fifty interest with you continuing to manage the ranch."

"As presumptive owner?"

"That's correct," Gainer grinned. "Because if anything goes wrong I ain't honin' to have Ryerson camped in my hair any more'n he is already—for as long, anyway, as I am able to prevent it. You'll be the big cheese; I'll be your silent partner."

"And you'll expect me to use the price of your half to stock it?"

"No," Gainer said. "I'll pay my share toward puttin' stock on it."

"I'll think it over," Marratt said. Gainer sidled around him. At the door, he said, "I'll want your answer tomorrow. It could be unfortunate for both of us if Ryerson should discover we're havin' any dealin's. There's a can of white paint in the barn. If the answer's yes, put a coat of it on your chimney."

Mastitis can lower milk production 10 to 20 percent without your knowing it, says a University of Illinois veterinarian.

NEW YORK (AP)—A huge amphibious "truck" that can highball a locomotive over water or desert is being developed by the Army's Transportation Corps.

Steelways, magazine of American Iron and Steel Institute, says the Barc, as it is known, will be used to bring greater mobility to heavy war gear in beach-head operations.

Made largely of steel and equipped with 10-foot tires, the Barc will be capable of hauling up to 120 tons in weight. It has an overall length of 61 feet and is driven in water by twin screws. If the rudders fail, its engines can steer it.

Despite its tremendous proportions, the Barc requires only a single operator on land or sea.

Compare Specifications INSTEAD OF Claimed Regular Price

DURING THE MANY YEARS OF GOVERNMENT PRICE CONTROL WE ALL BECAME AC-CUSTOMED TO ACCEPT REGULAR PRICE AT ITS FACE VALUE. SO WE ARE STILL IN-CLINED TO JUDGE THE VALUES OF ANY ARTICLE BY THE CLAIMED REGULAR PRICE. THIS MAKES US VULNERABLE TO FICTITIOUS PRICE CLAIMS.

WATCH FOR THESE SYMPTOMS of FAKE SALES

When there is a great difference in sale price and claimed regular price without giving sensible reason for sale and without giving definite specifications and description of merchandise.

Watch Free Gift Offers where free gift and article on sale are not both described and specifications given.

Go slow when salesmen avoid questions about specifications by changing the subject and try to high pressure you into buying without giving you a chance to compare specifications.

Be careful of stores which continually claim to be having a sale and don't give sensible reasons or definite specifications.

Watch when salesmen talk down the item advertised and attempt to step you up to a higher priced item.

Compare Specifications and Price of This Mattress
